CLARESHOLM ALTA., SEPT. 24 1914.

NO. 31

SUMMARY OF WAR SITUATION

Petrograd, Sept. 23.—The Russian general staff has issued the following about the battle at the Aisne River.

"In continuing the pursuit of the retreating Austrians the Russian troops have reached Veschnyok.

In the region of Przemyśl the operations of the Russians are developing with success.

Upon the German front the Russian troops are in close contact with the enemy, but no battle has yet taken place.

Rome, via Paris, Sept. 22.—In spite of denials to the contrary made by the Austrian government, newspapers here publish detailed descriptions purporting to show that Austrian armaments are being placed on the Italian frontier, and declare that preparations are being made by Austria to invade Italy.

Montreal, Sept. 23.—The Belgian commission to the United States arrived in Montreal to-night. The delegation was greeted in the streets by several thousand citizens. They will probably leave for Chicago Thursday night or Friday morning.

London, Sept. 23.—According to a message from Paris to the Central News, a Russian cruiser has sunk a German cruiser and two torpedo boats in the Baltic.

Ottawa, Sept. 23.—It is understood that the government will shortly pass an order-in-council which will give the federal authorities a greater measure of control over telegraph and telephone lines during the war. The government it is stated will take wide powers, which will be exercised only when it becomes necessary. If action is taken it is likely that the authority of the board of censors appointed shortly will be enlarged.

Will the wives of all military and naval reservists of allied British or otherwise, whether in need or not, who have not communicated with the G.O. Maceoed chapter I.O.D.E. kindly do so at once, either in person or in writing? By doing so they will greatly facilitate matters.

IDA S. DANKS,

Secretary.

Preserving Fruit Without Sugar

(By a Local Resident)

This is a very simple way to preserve fruit in the Old Country nearly all the fruit is put up without sugar with the exception of jams and jellies. Fruit for preserving should be of the best quality obtainable, entirely free from specks or bruises, and should be prepared in the same way as for sugar preserving. After the fruit is stalked it should be placed into clean cold water; month until fill of the fruit should then be covered with clean cold water stood in the kettle or boiler in about three or four inches of cold water, this kettle then placed on the stove and the heat kept covered with small plates or glass tops not fastened down, after this a doe put the lid on the kettle and bring to the boil and keep boiling for twenty minutes. Take the kettle from the stove and stand in a cool place until the fruit is entirely cold, do not remove the fruit from the water until it is cold, then place in the bottles large corks and cover these with hot sealing wax. Fruit done in this manner will keep almost any length of time, of course sealers are not needed, the bottles to be great care must be taken in sealing the fruit up as it must be entirely airtight.

THE LAND OF OPHIR.

Territory Near Doreheit Where Solomon got His Gold.

The coast of southeastern Africa is not usually regarded to-day as a region of any especial interest. It mainly belongs to the vast undeveloped territory of Portuguese East Africa. The interior is wild and thinly inhabited, nor, apart from their political position and their rather triting commercial importance, are the towns—Sofala, Mozambique, and their fellows—especially inviting places.

Nevertheless, there is much that is of great, perhaps supreme interest in this more or less derelict territory.

It is certain that it has been in the past of great commercial importance.

This is by no means an unparalleled phenomenon in history. The decayed empire of Novgorod, in Russia, was once the emporium of northeast Europe; the awful desert of Mohan in Beluchistan has been a great trade highway.

There is ample evidence that the region behind Sofala, part of which is now known as Matshidano, was an anciently of vast importance owing to its gold mines. It contains a remarkable series of ruins, the most is plain from the evidence afforded by them, of a great and powerful city. One of these deserted cities is known to have been known under the name of "Zimbabwe" but it is only one of many.

There is evidence that people who built these settlements and exploited the resources of its gold mines, were of our region there has been much controvery. So much seems certain that they were not of the same stock as this at once ruled out the Egyptians.

The gold mines of Sofala, and the

and their very poor character might seem to point to Phoenicians, but since the Phoenicians did not enter the Phoenicians are being relegated to a lower place in the list of nations who have hitherto occupied, and purely Phoenician in the south Africa is highly probable.

The indications rather point to Arabia. The commercial importance of Arabia before the Mohammedan era is certain. The Phoenicians men might very well have exported the eastern coast of Africa. The distance from Aden to Sofala Bay is some 2,600 miles less than that from Sofala to the Indian Ocean. It is no solid reason against the probability of the accomplishment of such a voyage by Arab seamen. It was merely a matter of lengthy coasting.
